So what else is new? Ohio State and Michigan playing for the Big Ten title and the ensuing trip to the Rose Bowl has become as predictable as Jack Nicklaus winning a major golf tournament or John Havlicek sinking the winning basket for the Boston Celtics. For the past six years and eight of the last nine now, this game has been for all the marbles.

"It is unquestionably the greatest rivalry in college football," maintains OSU coach Woody Hayes, whose 16-8-1 record against the Wolverines includes a 9-3 mark here in Ohio Stadium. "No, make that the greatest rivalry in all of sports. I don't know of any other that even comes close to this one."

Hayes and the Buckeyes made Big Ten history last week at Minnesota by assuring themselves of at least a tie for a fifth consecutive conference crown. It's a feat that has never been accomplished before and may never be accomplished again, but because of the importance of today's game there hasn't been much time to celebrate the win over the Gophers, which incidentally was the Buckeyes' seventeenth consecutive Big Ten triumph.

"Obviously we are very happy about last week and a share of the Big Ten title," Woody says. "But our concern now is the future, not what happened last week."

As always, the Wolverines of Coach Bo Schembechler boast an awesome array of talent. The dreaded foes from the North come into today's contest averaging 40 points and 456 yards a game. Fullback Rob Lytle (Michigan's all-time leading rusher), Tailback Harlan Huckleby, Wingback Jim Smith and Quarterback Rick Leach comprise what may be the best backfield in Maize and Blue History, and up front there's a solid, experienced line.

Defensively, the Wolverines, led by Tackle Greg Morton, Linebacker Calvin O'Neal and Wolf Jerry Zuver, have yielded just 81 points in posting a 9-1 record. Four of those wins have been shutouts.

"It's a fine team and extremely well coached," declares Woody. "As always, we expect a fine football game."

By comparison the Buckeyes are averaging 28 points a game, while giving up an average of 11.7. "But we are getting better each time we play," declares Woody. "That's the important thing."

Both Woody and Bo agree that today's struggle is likely to be a low scoring affair. That's usually the case when two talented, well-coached teams get together this late in the season. And no doubt about it, both the Buckeyes and Wolverines have talent and coaching on their side.

AUDIBLES: Eighteen seniors are making their final home appearance today. They are Ron Ayers, Nick Buonamici, Bob Brudzinski, Mike Datish, Jim Harrell, Phil Heilman, Bob Hyatt, Pete Johnson, Bill Lukens, Max Midlam, Jim Pacenta, Lou Pietrini, Barney Renard, Bruce Ruhl, Tom Skladany, Ed Thompson, Scott Wolery and Chris Wolfe.

Today is the 73rd meeting between the Buckeyes and Wolverines. Michigan leads the series 39-28-5, but the Buckeyes hold a 28-27-3 edge since joining the Big Ten.

Counting six years at Miami of Ohio, Bo's overall record is a fine 115-27-6. In eight years at Michigan he has won 75, lost 10 and tied three, leading the Wolverines to one Big Ten title outright and four co-championships.

Woody's career mark stands at 221-64-9, including a 188-53-9 mark and 12 Big Ten titles at OSU.

BUCK OF THE WEEK

AARON BROWN—MIDDLE GUARD — Had his best game of the year last week at Minnesota, collecting 10 tackles, including four stops behind the line of scrimmage for a minus 42 yards. The Warren, O. junior, perhaps the quickest middle guard ever to play at OSU, has 87 tackles on the year, nine of which are sacks. Received a team high seven leaves for his Minnesota showing and was named Big Ten defensive player of the week.

LINEMAN OF THE WEEK

NICK BUONAMICI — DEFENSIVE TACKLE — Garnered six Buckeye leaves for his performance against Minnesota in which he had nine tackles, broke up a pass and had a key interception that thwarted a Gopher scoring drive. A 6-3, 242-pound senior from Brentwood, N.Y., Nick is having another sensational season for the Buckeyes. Going into today's game he has 80 tackles to his credit (32 solos and 48 assists), leads the team in passes broken up, is second in interceptions (three) and has six tackles for losses.

Jim Pacenta Buckeye Quarterback

A lesser person might have called it quits a long time ago. Not Jim Pacenta, Ohio State's classy senior quarterback, who up until four weeks ago had spent his collegiate career in almost total obscurity.

"I never once considered quitting," declared the 6-3 signal caller, who was thrust into the spotlight against Purdue when regular Rod Gerald was lost for the season with a back injury. "When I came here I didn't know how much I would play, but Ohio State was my choice and I believe in sticking by a commitment."

Pacenta's persistence has paid off. Since taking over for Gerald, he has guided the Buckeyes to four consecutive victories, including a 9-3 win over Minnesota last week that assured the OSU team of at least a tie for its fifth straight Big Ten title.

"The Minnesota game wasn't my best game, but it was sure my biggest thrill," declared the former Akron St. Vincent all-stater. "The Big Ten championship is what it is all about, and there's a special feeling of satisfaction when you are a starter."

Pacenta, who had played in just seven games prior to this year, has clicked on 23 of 38 passes as a starter, good for 335 yards and one touchdown. On the ground he has picked up 62 yards and has one TD, a four yard scamper last week at Minnesota that provided the Buckeyes with their margin of victory. But the new OSU field general prefers to play down his individual contribution to date.

"I'm just part of the team," says the pre-med honor student. "We have so many great athletes at Ohio State that no one player ever has to shoulder all the load. That has made things easier for me."

How does Head Coach Woody Hayes feel about his new starting quarterback?

"Jim has done a fantastic job for us under some very trying circumstances," praised Hayes. "But he is that kind of a young man. I never doubted his ability to step in and play for us."

"He was just excellent against Minnesota. It was his first really tight game, yet he didn't make a single major mistake. He's just a fine football player."

"I am comfortable now out on the field," says Pacenta. "I never doubted my own ability, but at first I was a little nervous. Now I have four weeks of practice and three starts under my belt and I feel much more relaxed."

Rick Leach Wolverine Quarterback

Michigan football coach Bo Schembechler was impressed last year with his freshman quarterback Rick Leach, but he told him, "You're going to have to be better this year if we're going to win a championship."

Leach always tries to follow the advice of his coach. After ten games as a sophomore, he is a better quarterback. In fact, Schembechler said, "Leach has no peer among quarterbacks in the conference."

That praise came after Leach had engineered Michigan's 45-0 victory over Minnesota. The southpaw from Flint had put together back-to-back performances that came as close to perfection as a quarterback can get. Consider this:

Against Indiana (a 35-0 Michigan win) the week before and Minnesota, Leach was at the controls on 12 possessions. Michigan has scored on 11 of them (a fumble near the goal line thwarting the other drive). He rushed 18 times for 166, completed eight of eight passes for 142 yards and threw four touchdown strikes. Leach missed most of the week of practice prior to the Purdue game, but scored one touchdown and fired a 64-yard scoring pass to Jim Smith for another in Michigan's 16-14 loss.

"I have more confidence out there and I think my teammates have more confidence in me," offers Leach. "We have worked very hard."

Last Saturday's game against Illinois was Leach's 22nd as the Michigan quarterback, 21 as a starter, and backfield coach Dennis Brown feels that experience has been the key. "Rick is maturing as a quarterback. He's working on basically the same things everyday in practice and he knows what's going on out there."

Leach in nine games has completed 47 of 87 passes for 897 yards and 11 touchdowns. He has rushed for 555 yards (6.0 average) and scored 10 touchdowns.

His total yardage of 1452 indicates the improvement over his freshman season when he had 1232 in 12 games.

HEAD COACH

WOODY HAYES

Woody Hayes and football have become synonymous during the past three decades. So, too, have Woody Hayes and winning.

Hayes, now in his 26th year at Ohio State, is the fourth winningest coach in college football history with 221 victories in 30 seasons. Only Alonzo Stagg, Pop Warner and Bear Bryant have more triumphs than the 63-year old Hayes, who spent three years at Denison and two at Miami (O.) before taking over the Buckeyes in 1951.

Hayes, last year's Coach of the Year when his team won 11 of its 12 starts, has won 188, lost 52 and tied 8 at OSU for a winning percentage of .767. In Big Ten play he owns a 139-33-7 record and has captured 12 conference championships. No other conference school comes close to either figure during the past quarter of a century.

Currently Hayes, who has coached longer in the Big Ten than anyone except Stagg (41 - years at Chicago) and Bob Zuppke (29 years at Illinois), is working on a string of five consecutive conference titles and an unprecedented four straight Rose Bowl appearances by the Buckeyes. This year's Big Ten crown makes Ohio State the first team in conference history to win five consecutive championships.

Overall, Hayes, a native of New Philadelphia, O., has taken eight OSU teams to Rose Bowls and produced national championship squads in 1954, 1957 and 1968. His 1969 squad, which posted a 9-1 mark, is generally regarded as one of the finest college football teams ever assembled.

Since Woody has coached at Ohio State, the Buckeye school has led the nation in average home game attendance for 21 of the last 25 years and finished second the other four seasons. At the end of 1975, Ohio State owned a string of 44 consecutive home sellouts.

Hayes has spent his entire coaching career within the state of Ohio. After graduating from Denison in 1935, he accepted a position as assistant football coach at Mingo Junction where he remained until being named head coach at New Philadelphia in 1938. He won 19, lost 10 and tied one at New Philly before joining the Navy in 1941.

Following his discharge, Hayes returned to Denison to embark upon a collegiate coaching career. In the time since, he has become one of the most respected and most successful coaches the profession has ever known.

AMBASSADORS

ALMA MATER

"Ambassadors for Alma Mater" — That's the role of all Ohio State alumni, and especially for the more than 73,000 dues-paying members of The Ohio State University Alumni Association.

Throughout Ohio, and in many parts of the nation, alumni members are recruiting student scholars, revealing to them the academic advantages of an Ohio State education. A special alumni club program centers on candidates for the University's honors program for qualified scholars.

But that's only a small part of the story. The Alumni Advisory Board monitors the acceptance of today's graduates by the business world. More than 120 alumni clubs present programs that keep alumni apprised of the University's growth and development. When Ohio State concerns are before the General Assembly, the organized alumni are ready to make certain their legislators are aware of the University's positions.

We're the largest (and one of the youngest) dues-paying alumni associations in the country. The average age of our members is just 37.

The Ohio State University Alumni Association, the official organization of graduates and former students, serves its members by helping them serve Ohio State.

To us, graduation marks not the end of four or so years at the University, but the beginning of a lifetime of loyal support.

Fremont Pair Takes Different Roads to Stardom

Bob Brudzinski

All-American hopeful Bob Brudzinski is having the kind of season that makes coaching fun. Just ask Esco Sarkkinen, Ohio State's scholarly defensive end coach of three decades.

"Bob has been a joy to watch this year," beams Sark of his prize pupil. "We have played ten games this year and 'Brud' has been superior in every one of them. Not just good or great, but superior. That makes him something special in my book."

Brudzinski, a consensus all-Big Ten choice last year and being touted as a possibility for the coveted Lombardi Award this year, is an awesome blend of speed, agility, strength and intelligence on the gridiron.

Despite the undeniable fact that other teams have made it a point to run away from him, the 6-4, 224-pound Fremont senior leads the team in interceptions, is second in tackles for losses (9-40) and is third in total tackles (112).

"Teams have learned that it makes sense to run away from Bob's side of the field," says Sarkkinen, himself a former OSU All-American. "But it never does them much good because he somehow always manages to wind up where the ball is. He's just a superb athlete."

How does Sarkkinen compare Brudzinski with Jim Houston, heretofore the greatest defensive end in OSU history?

"Bob is the best I have ever had," says the veteran coach. "Up until this year, I would have given the nod to Houston, but Bob has had such a phenomenal season that he has gone around Jim."

"The thing about Bob is that he never has a bad game. He's so consistent that it's like having a coach on the field," concluded Sarkkinen.

Brudzinski, a three-year starter for the Buckeyes, was heavily recruited by a number of major schools. But, he admits, Ohio State was always his first choice.

"I think I always knew that I was going to Ohio State," concedes the 21-year old marketing major. "I grew up on Buckeye football so it really wasn't a very difficult decision."

Rob Lytle is 'Mr. Versatile' of the Michigan football team and he doesn't mind it one bit.

Lytle has played fullback and tailback this season and is just as effective in either spot. The 6-1, 195-pound speedster, who was elected captain this season, says, "I'm really happy at fullback, but I like the tailback spot, too. I'm just glad I got the chance to play. I like to run the football — that's what I went to Michigan to do."

Lytle, who shared the tailback spot with Gordon Bell as a sophomore, gained 1040 yards as a fullback last season. This year he was scheduled to play tailback primarily, but an early injury to fullback Russell Davis changed the lineup.

His value to Michigan is not just as a runner. Just about everybody in the backfield had a higher rushing average against Stanford, yet Lytle was selected as Michigan's 'Offensive Champion of the Week.' He rushed for 101 yards, scored two touchdowns, and blocked with near perfection. Coach Bo Schembechler said after the 51-0 win, "I've seldom seen a fullback play better. Rob blocked, faked, ran, did everything required of the position."

The Fremont, Ohio native is one of the quickest fullbacks in college football. As a sophomore he captured fifth place in the Big Ten Indoor track championships, running the 60-yard dash in 6.2 seconds. His speed is helpful, too, when blocking for tailback Harlan Huckleby on wide plays.

Perhaps, even more important than his running ability, Lytle views his leadership on the field as essential. "I think I have to be one of the leaders . . . and so do Jimmy Smith and Kirk Lewis. We are the only seniors left from last season with starting experience. We have to keep the enthusiasm going."

Lytle is studying business in Michigan's School of Literature, Science and Arts and hopes to take over the family clothing store in Fremont someday. There are pro football teams who plan to delay his business career for a few years and Lytle says "That would be great. I think if I played pro football, it would help the family clothing business."

NATIONWIDE TIP FOR FALL!

The cooling system in your car is something that merits your attention. Simple preventive maintenance practices and the use of clean 50-50 solutions of ethylene glycol coolant solutions both winter and summer will keep your car running as it should, with fewer repairs and replacements being required, for many, many thousands of extra, trouble-free miles.

Check your car's cooling system this way:

Before the engine is started in the morning and while it is cold, remove the radiator cap and look at the coolant in the radiator. Note the level at which you find it.

If it is low, there is probably a leak in the cooling system somewhere.

If you still have last winter's antifreeze solution in the radiator, look at it carefully. Is it clean? If it is, you may leave it alone until fall's pre-winter servicing.

If, however, the coolant is dirty, contains rust and visible impurities, do drain the entire cooling system and flush it with a cooling system cleanser.

Drain and flush out thoroughly any cleanser used prior to refilling the system with the 50 - 50 mixture of coolant that you have pre-mixed before pouring into the radiator. (If you have any left over after topping off the radiator, keep it in storage in a sealed container for future make-up of coolant.)

Before filling the radiator with the coolant, check for faulty hoses by squeezing them and look for signs of checking, flaking, breaks, cracks, undue softness or brittleness.

Replace all faulty hoses.

COACHES' PROFILE

Richard Walker—Defensive Backfield

Richard Walker is starting his eighth year as defensive backfield coach at Ohio State. His coaching responsibilities deal primarily with the four deep backs. He has developed five All-American backs in the short period he has coached at Ohio State.

Walker is a 1955 graduate of John Carroll University. Following graduation, he entered the service and was discharged in the summer of 1957. He immediately began a highly successful coaching career that started as an assistant at Cathedral Latin High in Cleveland in 1957. In 1960 he took his first head coaching position at Watterson High in Columbus and was an instant success. In seven years, his teams won 51, lost only 11 and tied three. His 1966 team won the state championship.

In 1967, he went to the University of Toledo as defensive backfield coach. After two years, Walker went to the Naval Academy, where he stayed only four months, before joining the Ohio State staff in July, 1969.

Walker and his wife, Eleanor, have three children, sons Brad and Tom, and daughter, Kim.

Esco Sarkkinen is starting his 31st year with The Ohio State University football coaching staff. No other active coach has been identified with Big Ten football for a longer period than "Sark."

Sarkkinen joined the Buckeye staff in 1946 as end coach for Paul Bixler, and has been an invaluable assistant ever since.

His vast football knowledge, along with a perceptive, analytical approach, plus his many years of experience, make him one of the top college assistants in the nation. "Sark" has been in charge of the scouting program since 1951.

A native of Fairport Harbor, Ohio, Sarkkinen played football at Ohio State in 1937, '38 and '39, winning All-American honors as an end on the 1939 championship team.

He and his wife, Freda, have a married daughter, Sandra.

The New Chevrolet

The handwriting was on the wall.

It clearly said that the time had come for a new kind of 6-passenger car. One that would use fuel and space more sparingly, yet still provide the kind of room and ride you've found so comfortable and comforting in our popular full-size Chevys of the past.

The car is here.

It's called The New Chevrolet.

More head room

The New Chevrolet stands a little taller than last year's full-size Chevy, which perhaps explains why it looks so very proud in profile.

Inside, there's a little more clearance for heads and hats and hairdos, both in the back seat and up front.

A new acoustical ceiling helps keep things nice and quiet.

More leg room

We've increased the rear seat leg room by an inch in The Sedan (below) and by nearly two inches in The Coupe.

It will make a significant difference in riding comfort, especially on trips.

The straight-up styling of the car makes it easier to climb into and out of.

More trunk room

The trunk is truly enormous, more than a cubic foot bigger than last year, with a nice flat floor that makes it easy to arrange things.

It's one of many pleasant surprises awaiting you in The New Chevrolet.

More efficient

The New Chevrolet is, by design, a very lean but very strong automobile, with not a trace of flab anywhere on its beautiful body, chassis or frame.

And it pays off at the gas pump.

In EPA tests, The New Chevrolet is rated at 22 mpg highway, 17 mpg city with the new standard Six, auto. trans. and 2.73 axle. Remember, EPA figures are estimates. The actual mileage you get will vary depending on the type of driving you do, your driving habits, your car's condition and available equipment. (In California, EPA mileage figures are lower.)

The New Chevrolet.

We made it right for the times without making it wrong for the people.

You're going to love it.

Chevrolet

Now that's more like it.

Muscles alone aren't enough.

Even the toughest pro needs protection. Shoulder pads, hip pads, helmet—with these, a player can give the game all he's got, without fear of injury.

Life is much the same. Good health is important, but to get the most out of life, you need protection, too. That's where life insurance comes in. It can give you the security of knowing that your family will be protected, if you die. And, it can provide a reserve of funds for emergencies, education, retirement. To find out more about life insurance, call your Agent from The Equitable, today.

Future Gridiron, Land of Giants?

by BLACKIE SHEROD, Dallas Times-Herald

One midnight philosopher said to the second midnight philosopher as follows:

"Can you imagine what it'll be like, in the year 2000?"

"Well, for one thing," the other said glumly, "Brigitte Bardot will be 65 years old."

You could be almost as depressing in this Bicentennial Year, trying to forecast the nature of college football one century from now, in the Tri-centennial Year, for goodness sakes. Not even H. G. Wells or The Hon. Joseph Paterno would be so adventuresome.

(Well, for starters—growled a nearby cynic—the government will be running it, and every team will have a female quarterback.)

As all us highdome historians know, in order to project ahead, one must consider what has gone before. That was the idea once broached by Jones Ramsey, the longtime University of Texas sports information director who is generally considered the world's tallest and fattest philosopher with infinite capacity for logic and other items. Ramsey was at a 1971 meeting of the NCAA Public Relations Committee, and the subject concerned what NCAA members could do to celebrate the Bicentennial Year coming up in 1976.

"Hell, I don't know," said Ramsey with a delicate snort. "What did we do in 1876?"

An intriguing thought. In the nation's Centennial Year, Rutherford B. Hayes was elected Our Leader in overtime, Gen. Woodrow Hayes was commanding the federal militia, and a diminutive chap named Walter Camp was playing football his freshman year at Yale. The Eli's had a glorious undefeated season, winning three games, losing and tying none, but did not play in a bowl. This later became known as the Teapot Dome Scandal.

In Camp's first year, there were 15 men to a side, the halves lasted 45 minutes, the field was 140 yards long and players wore black horsehair pants which accounted for considerable fingernail loss from extremities of tacklers.

This was a significant year, however, for Walter Camp later was called the Father of Football. They never did, incidentally, find the mother.

But, feeding those scanty statistics into your friendly neighborhood computer, along with some current data, we must assume that the college game of 2076 will be played by 8.03 students in 40 minutes and 20 seconds over a field that measures 85 yards in length. This is what's known as advanced math.

Dashing right along with this stimulating projection, we must note the most famous backfield of all-time, the Four Horsemen of Notre Dame in the mid-20s, weighed in the 155-165 pound range. Red Grange, foremost hero of that particular era, was a 175-pounder and considered rather hefty.

Okay, what does the average running back of today weigh? Make it 195. From 165 to 195 is a half-century, right?

So the 2076 game will feature 230-pound halfbacks. Offensive linemen? Forget it. You'll only be able to get one on an 85-yard field.

Obviously one of the best selling items of the 2076 concession stands will be ear plugs, for the collisions of these playing folk will be deafening.

Of course, the U. S. Government or the Mars Government or whoever happens to be cracking the whip at the time, probably will exercise some sort of federal limitations. No tackle may weigh over 410 pounds. A federal inspector will make regular campus calls and force feed un-vitamins.

By then we'll be watching college football on pay-television screens big as a bedsheet. Bear Bryant will be the gent in the hound's tooth space helmet.

Teaching Excellence: A Buckeye Tradition

Ohio State's Big Eight

The University's $1,000 Alumni Awards for Distinguished Teaching, sponsored by the Alumni Association and the Development Fund, recognize and give evidence of the importance placed on superior teaching at Ohio State and provide encouragement and incentive for teaching achievement. A committee of four students, five faculty members and one alumna selected this year's eight winners based on student, faculty and alumni nominations. Two of the University's 1976 Distinguished Teachers are profiled here.

John V. Chidley

John V. Chidley, assistant professor of physical therapy, has never had an education course in his life.

Having "slid into teaching naturally," he claims, "It's easy to be a good teacher when you have exceptionally intelligent, motivated students who want to learn."

Chidley's students are juniors and seniors who have been admitted to the highly competitive physical therapy program. Last year, 550 students vied for 80 spots.

Chidley teaches several courses and seminars focusing on neuromuscular anatomy and medical kinesiology, how muscles and bones interact with outside forces such as gravity. He often uses guest lecturers and case studies in class.

Besides regular course work, students are required to spend several hours a week working with patients in local hospitals. But, Chidley said, "Before they begin their clinical work, they practice therapies on their classmates so they'll know exactly what their patients are feeling."

Chidley prefers essay tests and uses them when he can "to try to get at the thought processes. I always make a point of commenting on exams to show students where they went wrong. A test should be a learning experience."

He adds that, "It's important for a teacher to provide time to help each student as an individual understand the material. I'll always answer a question, and my office hours are fairly liberal."

As a teacher, he says, "I get my greatest kick out of seeing a student take something he learned in class, put it to work on a patient, and see it work. That's exciting."

Born in England, Chidley received his B.S. in biology from Bowling Green and a certificate in physical therapy and M.S. in anatomy at Ohio State. He has taught at the University since 1966.

Rodney Plimpton Jr.

What makes Rodney F. Plimpton Jr. the first two-time winner of the Distinguished Teaching Award?

"He is warm and helpful," said one student. "Many of his personal resources are loaned for student research. Even his family van is used for students, shuttling them to the University farm or back to their dorms after a special session."

Plimpton, a professor of animal science, is a cum laude graduate of Rutgers University. He was appointed instructor in 1965 after completing his master's and Ph.D. degrees at Ohio State. In 1968, he was recognized as one of five distinguished teachers.

"The award was important to me in 1968 because it showed me as a relatively young teacher that I had chosen the right profession," Plimpton said. But his second award means even more because it shows "that rapport has apparently remained with me as I get older."

Plimpton says there is no one best teaching method. "It depends on the material and the capability of the students. In our introductory core course in animal science, for example, we have a captive audience of students with a wide range of interests, so I use what could be called a multi-media approach — plenty of slides and overheads to sustain interest."

He thinks it is not by chance that the animal science faculty has won teaching awards in three of the last six years, or that the College of Agriculture has had a winner for eight straight years.

"Dean Roy Kottman and Chairman George Johnson believe that teaching is the primary responsibility of this institution, and this creates an atmosphere which should lead to effective teaching," Plimpton said.

THAT'S RIGHT . . . WE'RE THE FLAG-WAVERS!

. . . There are all kinds of flag-wavers in this world who wave flags for all sorts of reasons. The Ohio State University Alumni Association, the official organization of graduates and former students of The Ohio State University, has a membership of some 72,000 strong. We stand behind and support the Scarlet and Gray. You can, too, in many different ways. One way, visible to many, is to display a Buckeye Flag.

Each flag measures 3' x 5', a gray block "O" on each side sets on a scarlet field, grommet holes on one end permit easy attaching, and the durable nylon and tackle-twill material means it will be flying long after the game with that "other team."

For each flag, alumni association members should send $12.00. For non-members cost is $15.00. Shipping and tax are included in the above prices. Checks should be made payable to: Ohio State Alumni Association. Send your order to: Ohio State Alumni Association, Alumni House, 2400 Olentangy River Road, Columbus, Ohio, 43210.

Cancer center reaches out to serve region

Guaranteeing access to the highest quality of cancer care as near to home as possible for the people of Ohio and the U.S. Mideast is the ultimate objective of Ohio State University's Cancer Research Center.

And its designation last spring by the National Cancer Institute as a comprehensive Cancer Research and Demonstration Center makes meeting that goal a little easier.

Ohio State has the 18th center in a nationwide network authorized by the National Cancer Act of 1971. The comprehensive centers conduct a broad range of basic and clinical research and related training and develop and demonstrate the best methods of cancer prevention, diagnosis, treatment and rehabilitation.

The Ohio State center will serve Ohio, West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Western Pennsylvania, an area with a population of 18 million.

The NCI currently provides $4 million a year to Ohio State, including $1 million in direct support to the existing cancer center. The center receives another $1 million in research funds from other agencies and the University.

"The Ohio Valley region will benefit greatly in the years ahead from the development of this center," said Dr. Frank J. Rauscher Jr., NCI director. "Already Ohio State's center is providing leadership in developing multi-faceted community outreach programs and involving members of the medical profession practicing within the area it serves."

The center conducts a regional outpatient cancer chemotherapy program in Columbus, at two hospitals in Springfield, two in Zanesville, and one in Chillicothe, and clinical cancer education programs for dental and medical students at the University. The center's cancer control program also is developing projects to train nurses in special methods of cancer nursing.

Current clinical research at the center includes immunotherapy of lung cancer and leukemia, treatment of brain tumors, and studies of potential anticancer agents. One large project concentrates on how cancer develops, emphasizing study of the effects of environmental carcinogens (cancer-causing agents) on biological systems.

Twenty-four of Ohio State's academic areas and 124 researchers, assisted by more than 300 technicians, are involved in the work of the center.

The University and the center support an Interdisciplinary Oncology Unit in University Hospitals, using and evaluating 10 interdisciplinary procedures for improved treatment of cancer patients. The hospitals treat more than 2,000 new cases of cancer each year as a treatment and referral center for its region.

The center's community outreach programs include:

- Radiation Therapy and Physics Consultation serving 14 Ohio hospitals, developing expertise at the local level to enable patients to receive an optimal level of treatment in their communities.
- Continuing Medical Education conducted over two-way audio circuits to 73 Ohio hospitals, seven neighboring states and Canada.

throughout Ohio through specialized, intensive training of selected community staff physicians and nurses.

The center also participates in numerous conferences, symposia and continuing education film and tape production. All projects follow the center's philosophy of immediate patient impact and placing a priority on a community orientation.

Dr. David S. Yohn, director of the cancer research center, called the official designation "a tribute to nearly seven decades of dedication on the part of more than 400 individuals involved in the cancer effort at Ohio State."

He also cited the assistance of Ohio's U.S. Senators, Robert Taft and John Glenn, and Colubus-area U.S. Reps. Chalmers P. Wylie and Samuel Devine in securing the designation.

Dr. Yohn, a professor of veterinary medicine, is an internationally known virologist, recognized for his work in cancer-causing viruses in animals. He is active in MCI programs and the Leukemia Society of America.

"Knowledge for the control of cancer and leukemia will be gained only through continuing research," Dr. Yohn said. "It is not sufficient to just build hospitals. We must learn what agents cause cancer, how each agent causes cancer, and how the process can be reversed or prevented."

The University of Michigan's formidable array of research tools was bolstered recently by a floating scientific laboratory known as the Research Vessel (R/V) Laurentian.

"Laurentian is the newest addition to a series of U-M research vessels which have made possible extensive studies of the Great Lakes," says Cliff Tetzloff, marine superintendent of the U-M Great Lakes and Marine Waters Center. A major unit of the U-M Institute of Science and Technology, the Center was recently established to combine many of the U-M's research and educational programs related to the Great Lakes. The Center includes the Great Lakes Research Division, the Great Lakes Resource Management Program, and the Sea Grant Program.

Tetzloff is in charge of ship operations, a job which he characterizes as "seeing that the ship is in good running condition and can do what the scientists want done when and where they want it done."

"We finished our 'shakedown' work last year, and to date have conducted research operations on Lakes Michigan, Huron, and Erie," Tetzloff said.

Laurentian's home base is the Maritime Academy dock of Northwestern Michigan College in Traverse City, Mich.

The marine superintendent points out that the U-M, Argonne National Laboratory, the University of Wisconsin, and the Illinois State Geological Survey have put Laurentian to the test.

The Wisconsin scientists conducted fish distribution and identification research. U-M Sea Grant scientists and Illinois State Geological Survey scientists jointly investigated currents, bottom sediment transport, and ground water flow in sediments in southern Lake Michigan.

Working cooperatively with U-M scientists, Argonne researchers collected samples in Lakes Michigan, Huron, and Erie to determine, among other things, radioactivity levels in both water and bottom sediments.

Other projects involving Laurentian and conducted by scientists from U-M's Great Lakes Research Division dealt with Lake Michigan water quality, physical and chemical factors affecting vertical distribution of phytoplankton. Organizations funding the research included the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, the National Science Foundation, and the Energy Research and Development Administration.

'M's' Floating Lab Probes The Great Lakes

The University of Michigan's new research vessel Laurentian. Currently based in Traverse City, the ship is operated through the Great Lakes and Marine Waters Center of U-M's Institute of Science and Technology.

And how did Laurentian perform during the various research projects? According to Tetzloff, the reviews were mixed.

"The ship functioned very well, and scientists generally are pleased with the facilities," he notes. He adds, however, that "some scientists felt they could have profitably used more laboratory space and personnel accommodations than are available in Laurentian."

The facilities of the 80-foot, all-steel vessel include a hydraulic crane that can extend to 16 feet and lift over a ton at that radius, an A-frame hoist controlled from the stern of the ship for bottom, or "core," sampling, and one electric and two hydraulic winches, one of which carries 3,000 feet of cable. This cable length makes sampling possible in the deepest parts of Lake Superior and Michigan, which are 1,333 feet and 924 feet, respectively.

Laurentian—whose pilot house is equipped with radar, an automatic pilot, radio direction finder, gyro-compass, recording depth sounder, air operated engine controls, and VHF and single side band communication equipment—has a 22-foot beam and an eight and one-half foot draft.

Completed in 1974, the new vessel can accommodate a scientific party of ten. It is equipped with a 144-square-foot laboratory on the main deck, and a 400-square-foot lab below decks.

"The diesel-powered Laurentian replaced Inland Seas, retired in 1973 after 11 highly productive years," Tetzloff observes. "Captain Richard Thibault, who skippered Inland Seas during her tour of duty for Michigan, is also commanding the new research vessel."

"We schedule the activities of Laurentian tightly to avoid lengthy stretches of inactivity," Tetzloff says, adding that the scientific cruises range from three days duration to two weeks. Usual operation is from about March 15 to December 15 each year.

Complementing the activities of Laurentian is the Mysis, a smaller U-M research vessel operating out of Grand Haven, Mich.

Ohio State Fight Songs

ACROSS THE FIELD

Fight that team across the field,
Show them Ohio's here,
Set the earth reverberating with a mighty cheer
Rah! Rah! Rah!
Hit them hard and see how they fall;
Never let that team get the ball,
Hail! Hail! the gang's all here,
So let's win that old conference now.

CARMEN OHIO

Oh! Come let's sing Ohio's praise,
And songs to Alma Mater raise;
While our hearts rebounding thrill,
With joy which death alone can still.
Summer's heat or Winter's cold,
The seasons pass, the years will roll;
Time and change will surely show
How firm thy friendship O-hi-o.

BUCKEYE BATTLE CRY

In old Ohio there's a team,
That's known thru-out the land;
Eleven warriors, brave and bold,
Whose fame will ever stand,
And when the ball goes over,
Our cheers will reach the sky,
Ohio Field will hear again

The Buckeye Battle Cry —

Drive! Drive on down the field,
Men of the scarlet and gray;
Don't let them thru that line,
We have to win this game today,
Come on, Ohio!
Smash thru to victory
We cheer you as we go:
Our honor defend
So we'll fight to the end for O Hi o.

Try using ordinary binoculars to follow the Quarterback fading back for a pass and then switching to a wide receiver sprinting into the end zone. Can't be done. Because no matter how good your binoculars are, you miss a lot of the action if you can't change focus fast enough.

Bushnell's unique Insta-Focus ends this problem forever. With Insta-Focus you can change focus as often as you want — instantly. Bushnell binoculars with Insta-Focus are the only binoculars made specifically for the fan of fast moving sports action. Racing, hunting, bird watching, anything.
